2. A Spiritual Journey on Miyajima: Daisho-in Temple Firewalking Ritual, November 15, Hiroshima

©Daisho-in

Miyajima Misen Daisho-in is the oldest temple on Miyajima and follows the Omuro school of Shingon Buddhism. Visit Daisho-in Temple and participate in their incredible firewalking ritual, which dates back to the Heian period (794–1185). Once the fire is lit after a series of elaborate performances featuring arrows and Japanese swords, the atmosphere fills with religious chants and traditional music. The purpose of the ceremony is to pray for the fulfillment of wishes by burning away afflictions. The burnt offering is fueled by wood on which prayers have been written and once it's reduced to ashes, a path is made for priests and spectators to walk across. This extraordinary spiritual event is held on November 15th, as well as in spring.

3. Autumn in Tohoku enjoyed from the river: Abukuma Riverboat Cruise and Local Cuisine, Miyagi

©MARUMORI TOWN

Relax among the stunning scenery of Miyagi by taking a cruise on a traditional Japanese pleasure boat (Yakatabune) – the Abukuma Riverboat Cruise. The Abukuma River, which winds through Marumori town, is a wonderful place to enjoy the breathtaking beauty of Tohoku’s foliage and unique rock formations carved out by the flow of time. In autumn (September-November), the tranquil waters reflect a palette of vibrant hues, casting a mirror image of nature's artistry. With seasonal Japanese hot pot meal plans like Imoni (taro soup), the tour offers a memorable experience in autumn. From December, guests can use Japanese heated tables (Kotatsu) to stay warm and cozy while floating down Tohoku’s second-longest river. Abukuma Riverboat Cruise

4. Exploring Izumo, Where Japanese Mythology and Nature Converge, Shimane

Izumo, known as “the land of the deities,” shines as a breezy destination in Shimane Prefecture, blending cultural heritage and breathtaking landscapes. Home to the Izumo Taisha Grand Shrine, where deities are said to convene, it exudes a sense of mystique that permeates its historic surroundings and intrigues travelers of all varieties. Explore the scenic shores adorned with wonders both natural and constructed, like the Hinomisaki Shrine (“Hinomisaki” meaning “cape of the sun”), or venture into the Izumo Hinomisaki Lighthouse. Looking up, the pristine, white lighthouse against the azure sky creates a striking image, rivaled only by the view of the coast from the top as the autumn season paints the landscape in warm hues. With a broad range of attractions, Izumo is a perfect stop for those with an interest in ancient Japanese mythology and nature. Visiting in autumn the Kamiarisai Festival at Izumo Taisha, which is famous with the Oshimenawa (gigantic sacred Shinto rope of rice straw), brings good fortune, because it is held when the deities gather from all over Japan.

5. Party with Kagoshima Locals at the Ohara Festival, November 2 – 3

©OHARA FESTIVAL

The Ohara Festival, held around the Tenmonkan area on November 2nd-3rd each year, is the largest festival in southern Kyushu. The festival site covers the entire stretch along the streetcar line and hosting over 20,000 dancers. Starting from 1949, the festival features an array of events, with the highlight being the “So-odori” group dance performed to “Ohara-bushi,” a Kagoshima folk song. The city’s unique trams even join in on the festivities, adorned with lights and other vivid decorations. As thunderous drums echo through the streets during the evening events, colorful dancers moving in unison under the warm festival lanterns lights create a mesmerizing spectacle. Though relatively modern, the Ohara Festival still represents the traditional spirit of Matsuri (festivals). With a joyous atmosphere that generates fabulous fun, the whole family can enjoy the Ohara Festival.

10. Cultivating New Tea Experience at Kakuya Bessho, Shizuoka

©SURUGA Marketing & Tourism Bureau

High-quality Japanese tea has soared in popularity around the world, and Shizuoka is one of the top tea producing region in the country. The area's unique geography and climate— which provide plenty of water from rain and natural springs from Mt. Fuji – create ideal conditions for both cultivating and brewing tea leaves. The Tea Pairing and Matcha Calligraphy experience at Kakuya Bessho is a new concept that blends different elements of Japanese culture. Using organic Matcha (green tea), which is sustainable as they use tea drinkable but unperfect for consumer products, instead of traditional ink, visitors can activate all senses and create a unique work of art through the soothing practice of Japanese calligraphy. Over time, the vibrant green color of the matcha transforms, adding even more charm to the piece itself. The harmonious pairing includes a seasonal Japanese meal made from local ingredients with tea brewed by a tea master who is happy to share his knowledge with curious guests.
