2. The Mitsui Garden Hotels' PREMIER Series' First Kyoto Location Is Opening in the Heart of the City on July 31

©Mitsui Fudosan Co., Ltd.

The prime location of the new Mitsui Garden Hotel Kyoto Sanjo PREMIER will allow easy access to Kyoto's most famous sites, including the Geisha district of Gion and numerous shrines and temples. Though it will be right in the middle of one of the most bustling parts of Kyoto, the hotel's design, which is inspired by Kyoto-style "Machiya" townhouses, allows guests repose from the busyness as they head further into the building. The warm wooden accents throughout the entire interior create a calm atmosphere that is elegant and inviting, and the design reflects the amalgamation of Japanese and Western elements that the area is known for. It is sure to become more than just a place for sleep, instead becoming a destination to experience Kyoto.

3. Watch Captivating Folk Dances to Rumbling Drumbeats at the Morioka Sansa Odori Festival, August 1 - 4, Iwate

The Morioka Sansa Odori Festival in Iwate Prefecture in the Tohoku region normally takes place over 4 days from August 1 to 4. During this time, dancers dressed in various outfits parade through central Morioka City along to the ensemble of taiko drums, flutes, and chants. Not only is this a striking Taiko drumming performance, with thousands of drummers gathering to create resounding beats, but festival-goers are also allowed to partake later in the festival and jump in to dance around the floats. In addition to the captivatingly spectacular parade, there are also other gorgeous Sansa Odori performances that are put on around the city. Morioka was featured on the New York Times' 2023 list of "52 Places to Go," and during this festival, the normally peaceful city overflows with energy.

4. Commanding Floats Set Aomori City Aglow at the Aomori Nebuta Festival, August 2 - 7

©Aomori Tourism and Convention Association

The Aomori Nebuta Festival is one of the most famous festivals in Japan, drawing some 1 million visitors annually. It is known for its massive, color paper floats that are handmade and illustrate dynamic scenes from Japanese mythology and folklore. The processions that take place in the middle of Aomori City not only feature these impressive floats, but also exuberant music and animated dancers called “Haneto.” Another unique feature of the festival is that anyone can jump in and join the dancing as long as they are wearing the official dance outfit! There are several viewing spots the parade can be watched from, but for the most relaxed experience with guaranteed good views, you can opt for paid seats.

5. See Giant Lanterns Lighting Up the Night Sky at the Akita Kanto Festival, August 3 - 6

©Akita City Kanto Festival Executive Committee

The approximately 270-year-old Akita Kanto Festival is considered one of the great festivals of the Tohoku region, and has been designated as a National Important Intangible Folk Cultural Property. It is known for the spectacle of giant lantern bamboo poles called "Kanto" soaring above Kanto Odori Street in Akita City. The 10 thousand glowing lanterns that make up these Kanto resemble swaying ears of rice, perfectly showcasing the festival's purpose of praying for bountiful harvests. The largest of the Kanto are 12 meters tall and can weigh up to 50 kilograms, and incredibly, all of the Kanto are supported manually by masterful performers. The vivaciousness of the shining Kanto and the sounds of drums and flutes creates an unforgettable experience.

Special Experience

8. Gaze at the Colorful Hokkaido Countryside from Special Sightseeing Trains

Furano Lavender Express

Furano Biei Norokko Train

©Hokkaido Railway Company

The Furano Lavender Express is a special train that directly connects the cities of Sapporo and Furano during the flower season, which is usually from mid-June to August or September. Painted the color of one of the flowers Furano is known for, the lavender train runs through the idyllic Hokkaido countryside, offering superb views of the vast fields and infinite sky from the windows. During the same period, the Furano Biei Norokko Train takes passengers from Furano further north into the region's famous flower fields, which can be seen from the large windows. These trains are fun yet convenient ways to explore the massive prefecture of Hokkaido, which boasts vibrant summer scenery that is a completely different turn from the pure-white snowy winter landscapes.

National Park

9. Awe-Inspiring Harmonies with Mt. Fuji and the Rising Sun

©Kanto Regional Environment Office

For prime views of the iconic Mt. Fuji, look no further than Fuji-Hakone-Izu National Park, which straddles Tokyo, Kanagawa, Shizuoka, and Yamanashi Prefectures. As Mt. Fuji is located within the park, it can easily be viewed from all angles. One fantastic place to get great views is “Tanukiko Fugaku Terrace,” the recently renewed observation deck near Lake Tanuki, which sits at the western base of Mt. Fuji. Seeing the majestic mountain reflected on the calm waters while surrounded by the gorgeous nature of the park increases the grandeur twofold, but this is only trumped by the “Diamond Fuji” phenomenon that occurs in late April and late August. For an ephemeral moment, the rising sun perfectly aligns with the peak of the mountain, appearing to be born from Mt. Fuji itself. Also located near Lake Tanuki is the Lake Tanuki Nature School, where visitors of all ages can learn about nature through fun yet educational activities and games.
